GREAT WAR (1914-1918): ENGLAND: CAUSES OF THE WAR

Description

By an in-depth analysis of primary and secondary sources, students in this lesson will identify, understand and be able to explain England's role in driving the continent towards war in 1914 (including Parliament's foreign policy decisions that drove the UK away from Germany and towards France), the British reaction to the crisis in the Balkans that fateful summer and what Foreign Secretary Sir Edward Grey meant when he uttered the now famous statement about the "lamps going out all over Europe."

Essential Questions

- What factors in general drove Europe into the Great War, a war that no one, and yet everyone, seemed to want by early August 1914?
- What was England's role in driving the European continent towards war in 1914?
- Who were the major characters involved in Britain's decision to enter the Great War?

Academic Summary

In the span of four short days in the heat of summer in 1914, the entire world held its collective breath while everything that Europe knew about itself came crashing down. The Great War was beginning, a war that no one, and yet everyone, wanted. Over the next four years, millions of men would give the ultimate sacrifice in the trenches of France for ideas that most never really understood. Millions more would forever be scarred, both physically and mentally, by the horrors of war. In the end, the terrors of a new type of warfare, that of the trench system, unthinkable only a generation earlier, would permanently ingrain themselves on a collective consciousness. During and after the war, new political, social and intellectual philosophies would arise to challenge old ideas. Ironically, the war never had to happen, at least not on the scope that it came to be. Any one of the major powers could have backed out before it ever started. Some hesitated, but in the end, the web of alliances which had been forged over the years leading up to the struggle was simply too much for anyone to overcome. Students here will understand the basic ideas behind England's role in driving the continent towards war (including Parliament's foreign policy decisions that drove the UK away from Germany and towards France), the British reaction to the crisis in the Balkans that fateful summer and what Foreign Secretary Sir Edward Grey meant when he uttered the now famous statement about the "lamps going out all over Europe."

Objectives

1. Students will identify, understand and be able to explain the events surrounding the causes of the Great War in general and in Britain's decision to join the Allied side in particular.
2. Students will identify, understand and be able to explain the major figures involved in driving England into the Great War, including but not limited to
 - a. George V – King of England and Emperor of India 1910-1936
 - b. Herbert Henry Asquith – Prime Minister of the United Kingdom 1908-1916
 - c. David Lloyd George – Prime Minister of the United Kingdom 1916-1922
 - d. House of Saxe-Coburg vs. House of Windsor (UK royal family)
 - e. Sir Edward Grey – UK Foreign Secretary 1905-1916
3. Students will identify, understand and be able to explain how political and patriotic rhetoric and images helped sway the English public into yearning for war by 1914.
4. Students will identify, understand and be able to explain how the opening of the Great War is seen as a watershed event in both English and European history.

Procedures

I. Anticipatory Set

- Writing / Question: When might war be justified? Give concrete examples. (10 min)
- Handouts – Copies of the primary sources and readings from the websites listed below. (10 min)

II. Body of Lesson

- Lecture / PPT – Brief overview of road to World War I and the major characters involved. (20 min)
- Video – The Great War: On the Idle Hill of Summer (40 min)
- Independent Activity – Students read the primary sources and articles on the opening of the Great War in England, taking notes as appropriate. (30 min)
Suggestion: Have the students read some of these articles for homework the night before class to prepare for class discussion.
- Group Activity – Discussion on the causes of the Great War and the major characters involved in driving Europe into a general conflict in 1914, the propaganda used by the British government during the crisis and the British public's response to the call for war. (30 min)

III. Closure

- Exit Ticket / Assessment – Short Essay / DBQ: Sir Edward Grey, UK Foreign Secretary is quoted as giving the following statement on the eve of Britain's declaration of war against Germany in 1914... "The lamps are going out all over Europe, we shall not see them lit again in our life-time." Evaluate and analyze the statement above. What did Grey mean? What caused the "lamps" to go out? Was Britain justified in going to war over Belgium in 1914? How did the British people react to the opening of war?

Extension

On tour: Cenotaph, Whitehall London

While on tour, you will visit Parliament, the seat of British government, where the decision to enter the Great War was made by the House of Commons. A short distance away down Whitehall is the Cenotaph, a memorial to the British soldiers from both world wars and the site of the annual National Service of Remembrance, held at 11:00 AM on Remembrance Sunday, the closest Sunday to 11 November every year. Students will have the opportunity to see for themselves where Londoners have gathered for the last 90 years to remember their honored dead and where the monarch lays poppy wreaths every year. Remind them to look for the images of poppies everywhere in London.
